Sherry

Utterly unlike the cream Sherries associated with the old aunt in the murder mystery, these are the real Sherries that the Spanish used to keep for themselves - very little was exported to the US. To me, they are a revelation. They represent the best 'quality to price' ratio of any wines in the world of wine. The four main categories are aged differently (see below) but are all dry. In ascending order of body, the Fino's and Manzanillas go best with appetizers or as an aperitif; the Amontillados with soup, seafood or cheeses. The Palo Cortados and Olorosos are big enough to stand up to braised beef or lamb. Ask for a suggestion, we'd love to have you try one.

In Jerez where Sherry is made, there is a unique microclimate. At this southernmost tip of the Spanish peninsula, ocean breezes come from both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. When the new wine is put in barrel for aging, a natural yeast, known as "flor", develops on the surface of the wine. (See chart below) This yeast is what gives many Sherries their unique character and allows for what is known as "biologic aging". Oloroso in contrast is aged without flor, creating a richer, darker, slightly more alcoholic wine.

MEZCAL

Del Maguey Single Village Mezcals

The most complex spirit in the world, Mezcal has been produced mainly in the southern states of Mexico, most prominently in Oaxaca, for more than two centuries. Recent evidence points to distillation even before the arrival of the Spanish. The word mezcal or mexcalli in Nuaatl (one of the indigenous languages of southern Mexico) translates to oven-cooked agave. Using only ancient practices, this "Elixio of the Gods" is the most labor intensive spirit made anywhere today. The families of the Palenqueros, village producers, will do everything by hand or donkey: from harvesting, roasting, grinding, fermentation and finally distillation.

Various types of agave are used, Espadia the most common but all take five to fifteen years to reach the necessary maturity.

Here some examples of this mystical and magical spirit from our friends at Del Maguey. Each of the single villages bottlings are made by a single family as noted on the label and come from some of the most remote villages of Oaxaca, made the same way from generation through generation. And remember sip it don't shoot it. It's not tequila.

*Stigibeo!
Cheers!*

Traditionally, most Champagne has been sold by the "Grand Marqueses", the illustrious names we associate with luxury, Moët, Veuve Clicquot etc. The great houses have always depended on myriad small growers to supply much of their grapes. More and more, the small family growers have begun to bottle and market their own wines. The André Jacquart wines, as an example come from a family who own Premier and Grand Cru vineyards. For generations, they sold to the big players, but became early proponents of the "grower Champagne" movement, guaranteeing the quality and exceptional value of their wines.

"Very Burgundian" is the fashionable claim made by most California Chardonnays these days but finding one that actually earns the praise is often difficult. Sandhi is one of the very few. Founded by former sommelier Raj Par and made by Sashi Moorman, they make Pinot and Chard in the cool Santa Rita Hills that are surprising for their elegance, freshness and delicacy. Not surprisingly, the Sandhi team was instrumental in also founding an informal association of California winemakers who come together under the title "In Pursuit of Balance". The name says it all and indeed, this is a quality that in California wines has been most conspicuous for its absence.

CHENIN BLANC and SAUVIGNON BLANC

Savennières

Loire Valley Chenin Blancs

Two not-very-well-known regions in the Loire Valley are the source of some of the best white wines in France: Vouvray and Savennières. Made exclusively with the Chenin Blanc grape, they share a limestone soil that's the key to their finesse and complexity. Both are noted for the beauty of their perfume: peach, white flowers, green apple. Then there is the exquisite balance: an often honeyed fruit set off against the bright, citrus-like acidity. In Vouvray, the limestone is mixed with clay and chalk; the wines are forward and lush. In Savennières, the soil is limestone and slate, producing a more refined, tightly-wound wine with mineral flavors and great ageability.

Maison Trimbach

Since 1626 the Trimbach family have been making wine on the limestone hills in Ribeauville, Alsace. Today Jean and Pierre Trimbach, the 12th generation, handle daily business. Every Three Star Michelin restaurant in France, all twenty-six, carry these wines. Of the wines in our collection, only the Vendages Tardive is sweet. These are dry whites that match extremely well with all kinds of dishes: seafood, chicken, duck and especially pork. The Gewurztraminers are perfect with a wide range of Asian cuisines.

On the Greek island Santorini, bitter winds, volcanic soil and zero (!) rainfall during the growing season have combined to inspire a unique farming style. The Assyrtiko vines are trained into little baskets that both shelter from the winds and collect the mist that blows in from the sea. The resulting wines are just as unique, firm boned, exotic and delicious even with baby lamb.

The Beaujolais region in Southern Burgundy produces a delicious and affordable wine from the Gamay grape. Their 'brand' was damaged by the Beaujolais Nouveau craze of the 1980-90s. Real Beaujolais is now the great hidden value of Burgundy. Jean-Paul Brun above: producer Terres Dorées, some of the most highly regarded wines in the region.

Maranges 'La Fussièrè' 1^{er} Cru, Domaine Jean-Claude Regnaudot, 2015

Didier Regnaudot is the fourth generation of his family to make wine on their land in the little village of Maranges at the southern tip of the Cote D'Or. On the steep hills above the village, at 1300 ft, above sea level, the vines, planted just after WWII ripen late and produce a dark, earthy Pinot. Traditionally farmed, harvested by hand and vinified just as his ancestors did, this is Burgundy at its most authentic level.

View of the port of Bordeaux, 1759. The Dutch, Germans, British, Irish all had important roles in both the shipping and creation of Bordeaux wines. This openness to international trade helped to make Bordeaux the benchmark wine of the 19th and 20th centuries. Today, China's thirst for Bordeaux, and their willingness to pay, has pushed the price of the top growths into the stratosphere

BORDEAUX, FRANCE | Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc

St. Émilion, quite unlike its neighbor the city of Bordeaux, is a typical small southern French town. The wine business here is characterized more by small farmers than is the case across the river, with its grand châteaux and international shipping houses. In the famous Bordeaux classification of 1855, St.Émilion was not even included. Today of course, wines like Ausone, Cheval Blanc, Canon la Gaffelière are valued every bit as highly as the greatest of the Haut-Médoc. The finest wines here have a silken texture and sensuality that make for more immediate pleasure.

Snowden

Snowden winery is a fifth generation family-owned Napa winery, in itself a rarity as more and more US wineries sell out to the big conglomerates. Rarer still is Diana Snowden Seysses, wine-maker both at her families Napa winery and at her husband's family's estate in Burgundy, the renowned Domaine Dujac. This is an unprecedented vote of confidence from her father-in-law Jacques Seysses (pictured above with Diana and his two sons) one of the most influential and revered winemakers in France. Along with David Ramey, another former mentor, Diana has put Snowden at the forefront of an impulse to reinvigorate California winemaking with a more traditional European approach: less intervention, more natural, more food-friendly, more complex. Snowden is very much the future of California wine.

Seghesio 'Home Ranch', Sonoma Valley, California

The history of California winemaking in a bottle. Eduardo Seghesio emigrated from Piedmont, Italy to work for The Italian Swiss Colony winery. In 1895, he built a house and planted his own vineyards. Now known as "Home Ranch Vineyard", these vines, which still produce the wine of this name, are an heirloom clone of Zinfandel found almost nowhere else. An extraordinary California wine.

In the post-war period, a generation of cooks and writers from England and the US came to live in the inexpensive but supremely bountiful south of France. Welcomed by folks like Lulu Peyraud of Domaine Tempier, in Bandol, they absorbed a culture of food, wine (and life) that was threatened by mechanization and commercialism. The Provençal or more broadly, Mediterranean approach to fresh, seasonal food which they would bring back to the States, initially to California, would revolutionize the way we eat and drink, basking in fresh, ripe, bright flavors. Every chef, restaurant and sommelier in America today is in their debt. The wines of the Rhône share a similar profile to the cuisine and are a natural accompaniment to much contemporary cooking.

SPAIN | PRIORAT, CATALUNYA AND THE BALEARICS

August Vicent of Celler Cecilio. When Priorat was awarded D.O. status, Cecilio was the first winery registered. This was well before the "discovery" of Priorat by the younger winemakers in the late 1980s that brought the region prominence. Their L'Espill is an eye-opening experience.

Nestled between the Pyrenees mountains, the coast of the Mediterranean and the French border, Empordà has a growing reputation for producing hidden gems, Mas Estela chief among them. The Soto-Dalmau family bought the property in 1989 and began to reinvigorate the old vineyards planted with Grenache, Carignan and Syrah. Similar in style to a great Priorat, they age marvelously, with flavors of fig, anise and melted dark chocolate.

Old School Rioja

Many wine lovers are beginning to rediscover the beauty of traditional Rioja, especially the older Reservas and Gran Reservas. Gran Reserva requires 24 months aging in barrel and a further 36 months in bottle before release, though many winemakers allow for additional aging in the bodega. No one is more traditional than Lopez-Heredia, Lopez-Heredia will not release their wines until they are considered ready, like the 1981 listed above, a current release. Pecina, Santurnia, La Rioja Alta and Marqués de Murrieta are also proud practitioners to one degree or another, of the traditional style. Emphasis is on finesse, delicacy and complexity; Really no other wines in the world are delivered to you with this much pampering at a comparable price

SWEET AND FORTIFIED WINES

Marchesi di Grésy Moscato d'Asti 'La Serra', Piedmont, Italy, 2014 | 15
Gently sparkling, softly sweet; excellent light ending to a meal.

Banyuls, Domaine La Tour Vieille Tour' Reserva N.V. | 13

Banyuls, a sweet, port-like fortified wine is made in the hills behind a small fishing village on the French Mediterranean close to the Spanish border. The village was a favorite haunt of painters at the turn of the 20th century. Matisse, Braque and Derain were inspired by the brilliant light of the region to paint in a new way. Called by the press Les Fauves, 'The Wild Ones' they helped to create modern painting. It's not hard to imagine them retreating from the heat of the day into the shade of a little café with friends, arguing, eating a bite of cheese and sipping the local wine.

Madeira

700 km off of the coast of West Africa, Madeira produced the wines that fed the trade routes of the 18th century. On the long voyages between Africa, Brazil, the Caribbean, the American colonies and Britain, it was discovered that the wines of Madeira, buried deep in the ship's holds through this long and intense tropical heat, arrived in Baltimore not just good but better. The Estufagem process was developed to age the wine in oven-like rooms on the island for long periods, replicating the effects of a sea voyage. Madeira became the most popular drink of our Founding Fathers. Due to its unique production, Madeira is practically indestructible. Bottles from the 19th century remain perfectly sound. Most great Madeira is not sweet. The caramelized, amazingly complex flavors finish quite dry, delicious with cheese or many savory dishes.
