Traditionally, most Champagne has been sold by the "Grand Marquees", the illustrious names we associate with luxury, Moët, Veuve Clicquot etc. The great houses have always depended on myriad small growers to supply much of their grapes. More and more, the small family growers to bottling and marketing their own wines. The Jacquart wines as an example come from a family who own grand and premier cru vineyards. For generations, they sold to the big players, now they make and sell their own, guaranteeing quality and exceptional value.

WHITE WINES

CHENIN BLANC and SAUVIGNON BLANC

Old vines at Domaine du Closel, exquisite wines in Savennières

Loire Valley Chenin Blancs

Two not-very-well-known regions in the Loire Valley are the source of some of the best white wines in France: Vouvray and Savennières. Made exclusively with the Chenin Blanc grape, they share a limestone soil that's the key to their finesse and complexity. Both are noted for the beauty of their perfume: peach, white flowers, green apple. Then there is the exquisite balance: an often honeyed fruit set off against the bright, citrus-like acidity. In Vouvray, the limestone is mixed with clay and chalk; the wines are forward and lush. In Savennières, the soil is limestone and slate, producing a more refined, tightly-wound wine with mineral flavors and great ageability.

Maison Trimbach

Since 1626 the Trimbach family have been making wine on the limestone hills in Ribeauville, Alsace. Today Jean and Pierre Trimbach, the 12th generation, handle daily business. Every Three Star Michelin restaurant in France, all twenty-six, carry these wines. Of the wines in our collection, only the Vendages Tardive is sweet. These are dry whites that match extremely well with all kinds of dishes: seafood, chicken, duck and especially pork. The Gewurztraminers are perfect with a wide range of Asian cuisines.

Benanti's 'Pietramarina' comes from the town of Caselle, the "Superiore" region of Etna Bianco, on the eastern, seaward side of Sicily's Mount Etna. One of Italy's greatest whites, it is made from 80 year old bush trained vines and derives its complexity and strength from the ancient volcanic rock. In early December 2015, Etna experienced a major eruption. Luckily there was no damage to the vineyards, just a layer of ash that winemakers claim is excellent fertilizer.

89 Sandhi, Santa Rita Hills, 2012 | 63
"Very Burgundian" is the fashionable claim made by most California Chardonnays these days but finding one that actually earns the praise is often difficult. Sandhi is one of the very few. Founded by former sommelier Raj Par and made by Sashi Moorman, original winemaker at Evening Lands, they make Pinot and Chard in the cool Santa Rita Hills that are surprising for their elegance, freshness and delicacy. Not surprisingly, the Sandhi team were instrumental in also founding an informal association of California winemakers who come together under the title "In Pursuit of Balance". The name says it all and indeed, this is a quality that in California wines has been most conspicuous for its absence.

Michel Niellon

Visiting Niellon, one of the finest white wine makers in the world, this mail box was the only sign post to his home and cellars. Tucked away in a tiny alley in the tiny village of Chassagne, Niellon feels no need to shout, the wine speaks for itself.

PINOT NOIR | Burgundy, France | Côte de Beaune and Côte Chalonnaise

Château de Clos de Vougeot

Hospices de Beaune

Burgundy is a place of contrasts: ancient vineyards and monuments built by the church and nobility, contrast with Burgundy today, defined by an egalitarian ethos of family farms. Modest views (page 6) like the corner of the village of Chassagne belie some of the most expensive land prices in the world.

- The lesser-known villages of Burgundy's Côte D'Or can often be the source of some great values, and this Fixin is a perfect example. While the wines of Gevrey-Chambertin, just to the south, are among Burgundy's most famous, they are also (justly) pricey. Mongeard-Mugneret is an excellent larger domaine which makes a whole range of very good wines. Its Fixin, as good as many Gevreys, is supple and expressive.*

Littorai, Sonoma Coast

Previous to founding Littorai in the early nineties, Ted Lemon studied oenology in Dijon and then worked with a who's-who list of Burgundies great winemakers: Roumier, Bruno Clair, De Villaine, Dujac. Back in the states, he was one of the first to recognize the potential of the Sonoma Coast. He was also ahead of his time in the desire to craft wines that emphasized balance and elegance, rejecting the flamboyant fruit-bomb style that had become dominant in California at the time.

The legendary hillside of Hermitage on the Rhône River. In the meticulous journals that he kept during his travels to the best vineyards of Europe, Thomas Jefferson wrote ecstatically about the wines of Hermitage. He visited a number of times to buy wine for his cellars at Monticello. Powerful and earthy, they were able to stand up to the long voyage across the Atlantic. Syrah grown on these slopes has a complexity, depth and aristocratic breeding that it achieves nowhere else.

*M.F.K. Fisher, Elizabeth, David, Richard Olney, Alice Waters, Kermit Lynch, James Beard. ...
In the post-war period, a generation of cooks and writers from England and the US came to live in the inexpensive but supremely bountiful south of France. Welcomed by folks like Lulu Peyraud of Domaine Tempier, in Bandol, they absorbed a culture of food, wine (and living) that was threatened by mechanization and commercialism. The Provençal or more broadly, Mediterranean approach to fresh, seasonal food that they would bring back to the States, initially in California, would revolutionize the way we eat and drink, basking in fresh, ripe, bright flavors. Every chef, restaurant and sommelier in America today is in their debt. The wines of the Rhône share the same profile and are a natural accompaniment to much contemporary cuisine.*

SPAIN Priorat, Catalunya and the Balearics

Priorat is a rugged mountainous region south of Barcelona. For centuries, it had been famous for its "black wine", but, with the ravages of the 20th century, found most of its vineyards abandoned. Then in the late 1980s, a group of pioneering winemakers rediscovered the area's potential. The ancient vines of Grenache and Carignan, many over 100 years old, still bore fruit. It was a question of quality over quantity. They produced fewer grapes but those grapes were capable of making profound wine. Today, Priorat is again recognized as making some of the finest wines in Spain.

Old School Rioja

Many wine lovers are beginning to rediscover the beauty of traditional Rioja, especially the older Reservas and Gran Reservas. Gran Reserva requires 24 months aging in barrel and a further 36 months in bottle before release, though many winemakers allow for additional aging in the bodega. No one is more traditional than Lopez-Heredia, Lopez-Heredia will not release their wines until they are considered ready, like the 1981 listed below. Pecina, CVNE, La Rioja Alta and Marqués de Murrieta are also proud practitioners to one degree or another, of the traditional style, which emphasizes finesse, delicacy, complexity. Really no other wines in the world are delivered to you with this much pampering at a comparable price.

Hacienda Monasterio

Peter Sisseck, of the renowned Pingus, founded Monasterio in the early nineties and it became an instant classic. Situated on the south facing slope of the 'Golden Mile', as seen at left in the early spring, the chalk and limestone soils lend finesse and minerality to this corner of Ribera. Winemaker Carlos de la Fuente, crafts wines that feel like they have belonged to this soil for generations.

ITALY | The South: Campania, Basilicata and the Islands

The wines of Etna, the looming still-active volcano on the north east coast of Sicily, have re-established a stellar reputation in the last few years but a few decades ago, almost none were being produced commercially. Dr. Giuseppe Benanti was instrumental in this revival. In 1988 he began working to revitalize an old family vineyard and also set about intensive research on the indigenous grape varieties of Etna and their clones. Searching out ancient plots of old vine Nerello Mascalese and Nerello Cappuccio on the volcanic soil, he has created world-class wines with an indelible sense of place. Firm but not heavy, they age beautifully.

With the American wine market flooded with rivers of decent but hardly distinguished Argentinian Malbec, it's a pleasure to find one producer that truly stands out. The 1924 vineyard was indeed planted in 1924. With grapes from only the best parcel, the Vina 1924 is 100% estate grown and bottled. The vines have been tended organically from the beginning and are still grown on their natural rootstock: the Vistalba climate, soil and irrigation made the region free of devastating phylloxera. The vineyard lies over 3000 ft. above sea level, with low rainfall, cold nights and warm days creating a long, long growing season. Alberto Comarín has managed the vineyard for 40 years. A dark, brooding wine, not over-ripe, not showy, that rewards quiet contemplation.

The history of California winemaking in a bottle. Eduardo Seghesio emigrated from Piedmont, Italy to work for The Italian Swiss Colony winery. In 1895, he built a house and planted his own vineyards. Now known as "Home Ranch Vineyard", these vines, which still produce the wine of this name, are an heirloom clone of Zinfandel found almost nowhere else. An extraordinary California wine.

The Sonoma Coast is fast proving itself home to America's best Syrah, producing wine with the bouquet, finesse and balance one would previously have thought possible only in the northern Rhône. David Ramey makes one of the finest Syrah in the region. In the long run, some think that Sonoma Coast Syrah may be recognized as surpassing either Pinot Noir or Cabernet as California's very best wine

Failla

Ehren Jordan was winemaker at Marcassin and Turley Vineyards, two of the most respected wineries in California, before setting out on his own with Failla Vineyards. Located in the hilly, cool Sonoma Coast, he makes excellent Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Syrah that are remarkable for their finesse and definition.

Snowden

Snowden winery is a fifth generation family-owned Napa winery, in itself a rarity as more and more US wineries sell out to the big conglomerates. Rarer still is Diana Snowden Seysses, wine-maker both at her families Napa winery and at her husband's family's estate in Burgundy, the renowned Domaine Dujac. This is an unprecedented vote of confidence from her father-in-law Jacques Seysses (pictured above with Diana and his two sons) one of the most influential and revered winemakers in France. Along with David Ramey, another former mentor, Diana has put Snowden at the forefront of an impulse to reinvigorate California winemaking with a more traditional European approach: less intervention, more natural, more food-friendly, more complex. Snowden is very much the future of California wine.

- A real rarity in the California wine world, Renaissance differs in striking ways. While almost all quality California wines come from the coast, this is grown in the interior mountains, at an elevation of 1200 ft. While most Cabs have become super ripe and alcoholic (over 15 ° has become common) these are lean and elegant at 12.7°-13.5°, more like the Cabs from the 70's and 80's. And look at the vintage: 1999 and 2001. Renaissance cellars their wines until they feel that they are at their peak. These are current releases: The wines feel fresh and still young, just folded in layers of the complex flavors that only age can bring.*

Second Labels in Bordeaux:

From a top flight classified Bordeaux, a "second label" in no way implies second class quality. Many of the best châteaux have for more than a hundred years used the second label bottling to maintain the highest quality for their brand while at the same time offering to the public a more approachable wine, sooner ready to drink and, not unimportantly, more affordable. With Bordeaux prices reaching the stratosphere, this is an opportunity to explore one of the legendary châteaux without the need for that pesky second mortgage. So, we are happy to offer a number of second labels from some of the best producers in Bordeaux:

Lacoste-Borie from Château Grand-Puy-Lacoste

Sarget de Gruaud Larose from Château Gruaud Larose

La Dame de Montrose from Château Montrose

Réserve de la Comtesse from Château Pichon-Longueville Comtesse de Lalande

3 de Valandraud from Château Valandraud

In the mid-1700's the merchants of the great port of Bordeaux raised the capitol needed to drain the swamps of what is now the Haut-Medoc. Here they planted the vineyards and built the grand chateau that fed the world's thirst for wine, exported to Britain, northern Europe, the Americas and India. Born of the mercantilist age and inherently tied to the great shipping houses, the great chateau have always been the most expensive and the most cosmopolitan of the great French wine regions. For two centuries, these wines were the definition of quality for the world's winemakers and drinkers alike. Today, that tradition continues, with Asia providing an ever expanding market for luxury

Jean-Luc and Murielle Thunvin founded Valandraud in 1991 and Bordeaux was never the same. As outsiders, they were open to innovations, some would say blasphemies, that the tradition-proud establishment of the region would never have considered, Thus was born what became known as « Garagiste » wines : 'garage band' wineries making tiny amounts of hedonistic juice that flew in the face of the restraint and elegance of the traditional Bordeaux style. The Trois de Valandraud is their second label, and conservative or radical, it's a hard wine to argue with: supple, lively, silken. From a supposed iconoclast, an awfully classy wine.

SWEET AND FORTIFIED WINES

La Spinetta 'Biancospina' Moscato D'Asti, Italy, 2015 | 15
Gently sparkling, softly sweet; excellent light ending to a meal.

Banyuls, Domaine La Tour Vieille Tour' Reserva N.V. | 13

Banyuls, a sweet, port-like fortified wine is made in the hills behind a small fishing village on the French Mediterranean close to the Spanish border. The village was a favorite haunt of painters at the turn of the 20th century. Guys like Matisse, Braque, Picasso and Gris were enchanted by the brilliant light of the region and right there, helped to create modern painting. It's not hard to imagine them retreating from the heat of the day into the shade of a little café with friends, arguing, eating a bite of cheese and sipping the local wine.

MADEIRA

700 km off of the coast of West Africa, Madeira produced the wines that fed the trade routes of the 18th century. On the long voyages between Africa, Brazil, the Caribbean, the American colonies and Britain, it was discovered that the wines of Madeira, buried deep in the ship's holds through this long and intense tropical heat, arrived in Baltimore not just good but better. The Estufagem process was developed to age the wine in oven-like rooms on the island for long periods, replicating the effects of a sea voyage. Madeira became the most popular drink of our Founding Fathers. Due to its unique production, Madeira is practically indestructible. Bottles from the 19th century remain perfectly sound. Most great Madeira is not sweet. The caramelized, amazingly complex flavors finish quite dry, delicious with cheese or many savory dishes.

Sherry

Utterly unlike the cream Sherries associated with the old aunt in the murder mystery, these are the real Sherries that the Spanish used to keep for themselves - very little was exported to the US. To me, they are a revelation. They represent the best 'quality to price' ratio of any wines in the world of wine. The four main categories are aged differently (see below) but are all dry. In ascending order of body, the Fino's and Manzanillas go best with appetizers or as an aperitif; the Amontillados with soup, seafood or cheeses. The Palo Cortados and Olorosos are big enough to stand up to braised beef or lamb. Ask for a suggestion, we'd love to have you try one.
